

eco-logic

code begetting code our ecological assistant spawns little model offspring full of knowing formulae pared-down just-right no-flab clauses conjunction-jointed questions framed and named we revel as they run when `:-test.` responds `yes` we see our thoughts have legs our clause-heads sing, their bodies dance our jokes are in mining minds of modellers we know whose knowledge matters not banks or nukes not chemicorps or oil tycoons behind our proofs, real doubts economic arguments hopes for fairer trade beyond banner ads and guided missiles sea stinks, air wounds, earth burns the hardest sum remains to solve declarative becomes imperative:- `save(world).`

Mandy Haggith